PROFESSIONAL GRANT WRITING

Matrix New World Engineering, Inc. (Matrix) provides professional grant writing services to numerous government and private sector clients including municipalities, counties, economic development entities, non-profit organizations, and for-profit firms. Matrix provides a full spectrum of grant writing services that range from initial grant opportunity identification and grant application preparation through grant award, compliance/management, and close-out phases.

Having won many different grant awards and successfully assisted in the implementation and completion of funded projects, Matrix has established itself as a mark of quality and reliability. As Matrix is a full service planning, grant writing, engineering, surveying, landscape architecture, and energy firm, our wide range of in-house expertise enables us to prepare superior grant applications that expertly articulate pertinent technical information in these service areas and qualify for additional points in the grant application review process.

In addition to our experience, it is our personal service that sets us apart from the competition. Getting to know the community, its visions, and its stakeholders enables us to help our clients pursue viable grant opportunities and achieve their goals.

Our grant writing professionals utilize Geographic Information System (GIS) technology to provide clients with detailed mapping for any project or geographic area under consideration from site specific analysis to county-wide initiatives. GIS technology is used to inform decisions in all phases of the grants and funding process. In addition, the GIS based mapping facilitates the communication of key information by depicting the information in an appealing, user friendly format that helps illustrate the most important aspects of the project under consideration.
